Hi [Name],

Thank you for taking the time to share such detailed and constructive feedback—I truly appreciate your openness and partnership.

I want to sincerely apologize that the implementation didn't go as smoothly as we'd hoped, especially given the added pressure it created for your team mid-sprint. That's not the experience we want to deliver, and your insights are critical in helping us improve.

You raised excellent points about ensuring future PoCs better account for real-world complexities. Reflecting on this, I also see how earlier engagement from the DA team (to deliver the baseline dashboard) and clearer alignment on PoC objectives (e.g., feasibility vs. production readiness) could have set us up for better success. In hindsight, involving backend support earlier might have also helped address technical integration more proactively.

I love your suggestion of holding a workshop - it's a great way to align on objectives, expectations, and implementation readiness upfront. I'll take the lead on coordinating this and will include key developers and stakeholders from our side to ensure we're all on the same page.

Thanks again for your honesty and collaboration. I'm confident we can apply these lessons to make future phases much more seamless. Looking forward to moving forward together.

Best,
[Your Name]
